

OPINION

DAVID LANDSBERG, PUBLISHER | ANDERS GYLLENHAAL, EXECUTIVE EDITOR | JOE OGLESBY, EDITORIAL PAGE EDITOR

THE READERS' FORUM | www.MiamiHerald.com

MIAMI HERALD FILE

Landmark worthy?

Re the Oct. 8 article 2 icons named landmarks: In the 1950s things were different. The Coppertone Girl sign was cute. It promoted fun in the sun and sold suntan lotion.

At the beginning of the 21st century, it could be seen differently — as promoting skin cancer and not being a far stretch to the more sinister.

I don't think this should be a landmark.

- EVA-MARIA SCHELL, Key Biscayne